

more words monday

- Make a deck of flashcards with twenty words that you do not yet know. Track the words that you say most often throughout the day. Make a goal to replace five of them with the corresponding word in the language you are learning.
- Listen to a song in your target language. Practice singing it out loud to work on your pronunciation.
- Pick ten words that you have a tough time remembering. Make a set of visual flashcards with illustrations to jog your memory.

talk about it tuesday

- Create a stack of topic cards, for you and your friends to draw from when practicing your language.
- Imagine you met your favorite celebrity! Devise a list of questions you would ask them in the language you are learning.
- Record a podcast episode in your target language.
- Find a group of friends and commit to having lunch together and speaking in the language you are learning.
- Plan out a conversation of at least five turns that you could use if you visited a country that spoke your target language

writing wednesday

- Using nursery rhymes in your target language, write and illustrate a book for young readers.
- Write a diary entry in your target language. Explain what happened during your day and what you thought about it.
- Write an extension of a story in the language that you are learning.
- Write an original short story (at least two pages) in your target language.
- Invent a game for learners of your language to play! Write down all of the rules. Use the rules to teach your friends.

thinking thursday

- Take a walk outside while listening to a podcast in the language you are learning. Do your best to translate as you go!
- Watch your favorite television show or movie in your target language. Use the subtitles to help you understand what is happening.
- Get metacognitive! Evaluate your language progress so far and make a goal for where you want to be in a few months. How will you accomplish this?
- Read a novel in the language that you are learning.

festive fun friday

- Set your favorite video game, or cell phone app, to your target language. Challenge yourself to see how long you can play without changing the language back!
- Find a recipe for a food that is traditional to an area where your language is spoken. Cook the recipe and share with friends.
- Research and learn some tongue twisters in the language that you are learning.
- Learn about the holidays in a country that speaks your language. Plan a celebration for one!

daily language practice

duolingo for schools